FRANK P. JONES, Town Clerk.

Report of School Board.

Though the school year of 1893-4 has not realized in fullest measure our hopes, a review of the work accomplished assures us that we have no cause for discouragement ; that, indeed, considering certain unfavorable and unavoidable circumstances which have to some extent interfered with the success of some of the schools, the results of the year's work, taken as a whole, are far from unfavorable, and indicate decided progress and improvement. We invite your attention to the Treasurer's Report and the statistical tables herewith presented, and a careful study of the latter.

The necessary information with reference to expenditures will be found in the table devoted to that matter. Possibly some of the disbursements may not meet the approval of all, but keeping in view the permanent interests of the town, and particularly the school interests, we have sought to make such a use of the funds entrusted to us as would promote the general good, and such as we could approve were they committed to other hands than ours.

We trust that no cursory examination of the expenditures for repairs will incline any citizen to oppose the continuance of the liberal policy in appropriations for this purpose which has prevailed in the past. Neat, tastefully arranged school buildings and grounds are object lessons in culture and refinement to our pupils, and tend to the enhancement of values of real estate.

While in the main the work in the school room has proceeded under ordinarily favorable conditions during the past year, in a number of instances it has been more or less hindered by an unavoidable change of teachers, necessitating, on part of the pupils the becoming accustomed to new methods of instruction and government, and on the teacher's part the acquainting herself with the dispositions and mental capacities of her different pupils, and adapting herself to them—all of which requires time, the partial loss of which results in the temporarily retarded progress of the pupil, even though the new teacher may prove the peer of her predecessor. For this reason if for no other, frequent changes of teachers are to be deprecated. Sickness of the teacher or pupils or both has in one or more instances interrupted the school work, and, as is well known, nearly the whole of the fall term was lost to No. 5 school by the breaking out of a contagion.

In some instances there has been a measure of non-attendance, which, it seems to us can be ascribed only to the apathy of parents. How to arouse parents to a sense of the value of the school privileges which the town provides is as yet an unsolved problem.

As a rule, we think, our teachers have labored with conscientious diligence and faithfulness, and though we might criticise some methods which have been in use, and especially some liberties and awkwardness which have been tolerated in the school room, we would not be so uncharitable as to impute wrong motives or wilful negligence to the teacher. We cannot refrain however, from referring to the apparently trifling importance which some of our teachers attach to the reading recitation, judging from the loose manner in which it is often conducted. In a recent report, the late Supt. of Public Instruction,—Patterson—calls attention to this prevalent defect in our schools, and urges increased attention by teachers to this subject of “paramount importance.” Indistinct enunciation, bad punctuation and disregard of modulation causes any pupil to appear stupid, but with the added faults of grasping the book with both hands, hanging the head and leaning against the wall or desk, we have a spectacle of which any teacher should be ashamed. We have pressed this matter upon the attention of our teachers and pupils, and are pleased to note that some schools are making creditable improvement, but there is still much to be remedied, and time may well be spent upon this neglected study.

The advancement made by some pupils has not been as rapid as their parents desired, but to cover more ground at the expense of thoroughness would prove unprofitable, and the pupil fail to gain the object sought—a practical education. We fully appreciate the ambition of parents to have their children make rapid progress, but progress without thoroughness is not progress in any practical sense, as the pupil will learn when it is too late. Let us, then, be patient and sustain our teachers in their efforts to perform faithfully their duties.

We desire to again call the attention of parents and citizens to the necessity of more frequently visiting the schools. True, some schools show a creditable visiting record, but others present a record which argues a most lamentable disregard of this duty. By no means can we so well show our interest in our schools and encourage the pupils as by our presence. Nor can we by any other means so well acquaint ourselves with the teacher’s methods, and realize her perplexities and trials. None of us are paragons of patience in the home life ; ought we then, to expect and exact absolute patience of the teacher in the school room? Many times the strain upon her nerves is more severe than any can appreciate without standing in her place. We would not, however, be understood as lightly valuing patience in the teacher, for, viewed from an ethical standpoint, her influence over her pupils is secondary only to that of the home, and their future is largely in her hands. And not only so, but she is in no small sense the shaper of the nation's destiny, for the touch of her influence will be felt in the national councils through the future citizens whom she is now educating.
